4. Voc. Non vidi mej. I. BASSVS. Watſon 1. Luca Marenzio. 2.

O Merry world, when euery louer & his mate might walke from mead to meade and cherefully relate sowr plea- sures, & griefs following a wanton state: Those daies knew no suspect, each one might freely prate, ij. And dance, or sing, or play with his consoci-ate, And dãce, or sing, or play with his cõsoci- ate; Then louers vsd like turtles to kisse, to kisse, to kisse, O hunny dais and customs of antiquitie: But the world now is full of so fond iealosy, ij. fond iealosie, That we tearme charitie, wãton iniquitie, wanton iniquitie.

Farewell cruell & vnkind, Alone will I waile me, alone will I waile me, till breath faile me, And till my lifethred be vntwinde: Then my poore ghost still weeping, Shall thus disturb thee sleeping: O Amarillis, ô Amarillis, why art thou prowder then sweet Phillis, In whose faire face are placed two louely starres, two louely starres, wherwith heauen is disgraced: O Amarillis, ô Amaryllis, Why art thou prowder then sweet Phillis, In whose faire face are placed two louely starres, two louely starres wherwith heauen is disgraced.

Zephirus &c. Now calls nimfs frō out their bowres, Zephirus breathing, now calls nimfs frō out their bowres, to play & wanton, to play & wanton, in roabs of ſundrie flowres: Progne chirpeth, Progne chirpeth, Progne chirpeth, & ſweet Philomele recordeth, And Flora ſeeing what the ſpring affordeth, ſmi- leth, ſmi- leth ſo ſweetly, ỳ heauen, ỳ heauen, ỳ heauē it ſelfe inflamed, Greatly reioyceth, ij. to but heare her named: ij. The welkin, water, & earth, all are full, all are full, all are full of pleaſure, in loue as natures treaſure,

All creatures ioy in loue, as natures treaſure.

Faire ſhepherds queene, let vs hand in hand inchayned, dance vp and down the greene ij. lyke frends vnfayned: And merely recount, & merely recount, our happy daies, whyle my tender flock climes vp the mount, vp the mount, & there ſtayes: And ſhepherds all, come & follow me, come and follow mee, ij. prayſing Amaryllis And ſhepherds all, come & follow me, ij.

ij. praiſing Amerillis All but Amyntas, ij. ij.

whoſe onely ioy is Phyllis, ij. whoſe onely ioy is Phyllis.

THis ſweet & merry merry month of May, This ſweet & merry merry month of May, While nature wantons wantons wantons in her Pryme, & Byrds do ſing, ij. & Beaſts do play, play: & Beaſts & Beaſts do play, do play, do play, & Beaſts do play, do play, do play, for pleaſure for pleaſure of the ioyfull time, ỳ ioyful time, ij. I chooſe ỳ firſt for holly day, for holy day, for holy day, & greet Elyza, & greet, & greet Elyza, Elyza with a Ryme, with a Ryme, O, O Beautcous Queene, ij. of ſecond Troy, of ſecond Troy, Take well in worth, take well in worth a ſimple toy, ij. a ſimple toy, take well in worth a ſimple toy, a ſimple toy, a ſimple ij. a

THough faint & waſted, with ouerlong de- ſiring, of my belou'd but cru- ell foe, of my belou'd but cru- ell foe, but dyes admyring: O Loue, ô Loue, ô Loue, ij. O help at laſt, ij. let her feele thy dart, That ſo vnkyndly killd my hart. ſimple toy, take wel in worth a ſimple toy, a ſim- ple toy. O, O beautcous:

IN chayns: O tyrant Loue, ô tyrant Loue, ô come at once & ſlay me, That ſlying hence down, that flying down, wher Charons boat doth ſtay me, From cruell Amaryllis to cõuay me, Whoſe prowd aſpiring hart doth but delaie me, I may dance in Ely- ſium, there reſounding with ioy, the paines of Loue, and the deep wounding.

WHen Melibœus: &c. Wher meeting with his frend, they both imbraced, they both imbraced, And both together ioyfully were placed: ij.
ij. ij. O

Loue hath proclamed warre by Trũpet soũded, by trũpet soũded, ij.
& made a vow that beauty shalbe woũded, ij. ỹ beauty shal be woũded. Diana, Diana, Diana, see thy Nymfs be strongly garded, ij, for his stroks will amaze thẽ, if not well warded, ij.
ij. And Amaril- lis hyde thy beauties tresure, hyde thy beauties treasure, least in thy looks Loue take to great a plesure. If he assalt thee, ij.
ij. being thus enraged, his wrath in thee alas, ij. must be assuaged, his wrath in thee alas, his wrath in thee alas, must be assuaged.

The Fates: Haue slaine before his day, Di- a- naes cheefest iewell, Dia- naes cheefest iew- ell. But worthy Me- libœus euen in a momẽt,
